

MISS WILSON WEDS MR. SAYRE BEFORE NOTABLE ASSEMBLAGE

Marriage of President's Second Daughter in East Room of White House Is Witnessed by Many Persons Prominent in Official Life.

USHERS COLLEGE

FRIENDS OF MR. SAYRE
The ushers were collegemates of the bridegroom. The best man, Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, Mr. Sayre visited in Labrador and spent many months aiding him in caring for the sick and needy on that rock-bound coast.

There were only 400 invitations issued. This is 600 less than were issued by former President and Mrs. Roosevelt when their daughter, Alice, married Nicholas Longworth seven years ago. The members of the diplomatic corps, the United States Supreme Court, the Cabinet officers and Congressmen and their families occupied a space reserved for them at the South end of the East Room, near the dais. The relatives and out-of-town friends of the bride and bridegroom stood at the North end of the room.

The Vice President and Mrs. Marshall were unable to be present, their return to Washington having been delayed. They have been visiting relatives at Phoenix, Ariz., for the last month.

Only a few members of the Senate and House were invited. From the Senate came Senator John W. Kern, Democratic leader; Senator Gallinger, Republican leader, and the two New Jersey Senators. From the House came the Speaker and Representative James R. Mann, the minority leader.

DIPLOMATS WEAR

FULL COURT DRESS
The French Ambassador, M. Jusserand, as dean of the corps, decreed that the diplomats invited wear full court dress as a compliment to the President, and the effect was most brilliant.

The house guests for the wedding were: Mrs. Sayre, mother of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Wilson, of Baltimore; Mrs.

Robert Ewing, of Nashville, a cousin of Mrs. Wilson; Mr. and Mrs. Legare Walker, of Somerville, S. C., cousins of Mrs. Wilson; Miss Adeline Scott, Miss Mary Scott; Miss Marjorie Brown, Miss Mary White, and Miss Agnes Winter.

The relatives of the bride and bridegroom were the first to greet the President and Mrs. Wilson, who had taken up their stand in the Blue Room after the ceremony. The bride and bridegroom also received there. A few minutes later the silken ropes were removed and the diplomats, led by the French Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand, entered the Blue Room to offer their congratulations and good wishes to the President and Mrs. Wilson and the happy pair. The other guests then flocked into the Blue Room.

After greeting the bride and bridegroom the guests passed into the State dining-room, where refreshments were served at a long table decorated with clusters of pink chrysanthemums and shaded candles.

MAMMOTH CAKE

CUT BY THE BRIDE
The bridal party gathered in the private dining room. The bride's table was decorated with pink roses. A mammoth cake, beautifully decorated, was cut by the bride and portions distributed to the guests.

The members of the Marine Band, their scarlet coats making a brilliant picture against the palms, were stationed in the main entrance to the White House, and rendered beautiful music before, and following the marriage ceremony. Later in the afternoon they took up their station in the East Room and dancing was indulged in by many of the guests. The Secretary of the Treasury proved himself an expert "turkey trotter," as did many others.

The bride cake was cut by Mrs. Wilson with the aid of the sword of Dr. Cary Grayson, personal aid of the President. Miss Wilson started to cut the cake with one of the new knife presents but, like the last White House bride, Miss Alice Roosevelt, she was obliged to resort to the friendly sword of a White House aid.

At 7 o'clock, after the departure of the guests, the bride party was photographed, and later the bride and groom left on their wedding trip. Mrs. Sayre wore a stylish traveling suit of hunter's green alpaca, with self-colored waist of charmeuse, embroidered in shades to match.

Bride's Wedding Gown Triumph of Dressmaking

Made of Soft, Glossy Satin, Draped and Trimmed with Rare Point Lace, with Train Falling from Shoulders. Mrs. Sayre Wore a Diamond Necklace.

By NATALIE SUMNER LINCOLN.

The wedding gown of Mrs. Francis Bowes Sayre was a triumph of the dressmaker's art, and was exceedingly becoming to her blond beauty. It was made of the softest, glossiest satin, draped and trimmed with rare point lace, the folds being held in place with tiny clusters of orange blossoms. The bodice was encased in orange blossom design, which outlined the open neck and extended down the side of the skirt; the sleeves were also finished with the same design, from which fell a deep lace ruffle. The court train fell in graceful lines from her shoulders. Her toilet veil was arranged with a point lace cap, held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms.

Mrs. Sayre wore the superb diamond necklace presented to her by the House of Representatives, and a handsome diamond pin, the gift of her husband.

While Mrs. Sayre purchased her trousseau with a view to the requirements of a college town, she also provided herself with some exceedingly smart afternoon gowns and evening dresses to wear when visiting in larger cities. While all her gowns are markedly up-to-date not one exaggerated note is sounded.

Has Two Tailored Suits.
Besides her travelling suit of hunter's green alpaca, Mrs. Sayre has two tailored suits, one of blue velvet trimmed with white lace and another of velvet de laine made with draped skirt, draped coat, and with collar and cuffs of brown fur. She has a blue velvet hat to wear with this, trimmed with fur and a tiny cluster of roses.

Mrs. Sayre's wedding gown and the dresses of her bridesmaids were made in New York, but the rest of her trousseau was purchased in Washington and Baltimore.

A three-piece afternoon costume, an afternoon frock, and a dinner gown were imported from Paris by a local firm for Mrs. Sayre.

The three-piece suit is of Dresden blue chiffon, brocaded in velvet with a knee-deep hem of plain blue in the same shade, a coat cut in modish lines of the plain velvet and finished with collar and cuffs of white fur.

The afternoon gown is made of ivory white velvet, and the waist is almost entirely of cream chiffon and lace. The evening gown is of white satin with a double train of chiffon and Spanish lace. Another dress is a very pale blue satin, made with a long draped train and Dutch neck.

crepe with ruffled tulle at the neck and down the front. Two are net waists with hand-ran tucks.

The lingerie is all hand-made and was the loving work of the bride's family and friends and has all been initiated.

FAIRY STONE WILL BRING BRIDE LUCK

Mrs. Sayre Started on Honeymoon with Aids of Virginia Tradition.

The White House bride started her married life with the charm of a Virginia fairy stone to bring her luck.

When Miss Genevieve Clark presented Miss Jessie Wilson with this little stone hung on a tiny neck chain she no doubt started a tradition that will be revived in the future of these curious little stones.

The folk lore of the mountaineers of Southwest Virginia is filled with many pretty stories of these stones.

The fairy stones were first brought into prominence by John Fox, Jr., a native of this section of the country, in his "Trail of the Lonesome Pine." The fairy stone is declared to play an important part in shaping the destinies of the young lovers.

Securely tucked away from railroad conductors and influences of civilization, on top of a high peak of the Blue Ridge Mountains in Patrick County, Virginia, is a field of about fifty acres where these little stones, shaped as perfect crosses, are found. Strangers to say this is the only place in the world where they can be found. Several hundred years ago similar ones made their appearance on the coast of Brittany, but soon disappeared.

They range in size from a quarter of an inch to an inch, are of a dark brown color and of so high a finish that they are used as jewelry without any further polishing. Every stone is in some shape of a cross, and millions can be picked up, perfectly formed crosses, either Maltese, Roman or St. Patrick.

THE WEDDING MUSIC.
By the United States Marine Band: Overture, "Patriot".....Roberts "March of the Stars".....Hendling (a) "Torch Dance of the Brides of Kentucky".....Roberts (b) Wedding procession from "The Persians".....Roberts

What is believed to be the largest single shipment of vinegar ever made, consisting of a solid train of fifteen cars, was sent recently from a factory in Paris, Tex.

Velvet Gowns of All Shades Worn by Women at Wedding

Many of the Costumes Seen at White House Marriage Had Been Imported Especially for the Occasion.

The myriad lights from the three huge glass chandeliers in the East Room were reflected back from glittering jeweled orders, gold braid, priceless jeweled ornaments and the rich raiment of the women. Many handsome gowns, imported for the occasion, were worn by the distinguished guests. Most of the costumes were of velvet shading from black to palest mauve.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson wore a trained gown of ecru chiffon velvet, with trimmings of mink and giraffe of old blue and gold under the ecru lace. The skirt was draped on one side with fall of the ecru lace extending to the hem. There was also a long train of ecru lace directly in the back outlined in mink.

Mrs. John A. Wilson was gowned in pink and silver brocade trimmed with net embroidered in silver, and touches of blue on bodice and skirt.

Wears Purple Velvet.
Mrs. Robert H. Sayre, mother of the bridegroom, wore purple velvet, made in modish but severe lines with point lace embroidery on the bodice. Mrs. Sayre also wore handsome diamond ornaments and a black hat trimmed with fur.

Miss Blanche Nevins, aunt of the bridegroom, wore violet velvet, trimmed in plum. The lace forming a deep tunic on the front of the skirt.

Mrs. Joseph R. Wilson, of Baltimore, sister-in-law of the President, wore a superb costume of wistaria brocade velvet. Parisian braid, fitch fur and cream lace are combined with touches of velvet in the bodice. Her hat was of wistaria velvet with plumes and fur.

Grouped near the dais where the ceremony took place, the wives and daughters of the Cabinet members presented an air of elegance. Here, as in the costumes of the wives and daughters of diplomats, velvet of varying hue with always a trimming of fur, evinced the popularity of those materials.

of exquisite lace giving a relief of color, and like the rest of the costume, including the velvet hat, was trimmed with bands of Siberian squirrel.

Miss Nona McAdoo, daughter of the Secretary of the Treasury, wore a costume of blue velvet which was exceedingly becoming to her blonde beauty; the small hat with plumes being of the same shade of blue.

Mrs. Lindsey M. Garrison, wife of the Secretary of War, was exceedingly modish in a gown of sage green poplin with bands of sable on the draped skirt, the bodice composed almost wholly of chiffon and lace, with bands of the same fur. Her hat of sage green velvet was trimmed with fur and plumes.

Mrs. Albert Sydney Burleson, wife of the Postmaster General, wore a gown of heavy crepe de chine gown, draped in modish lines with old rose moire introduced in long lines and touches of white lace on the corsage, with orange velvet giraffe, and a black velvet hat with plumes.

Miss Sidney Burleson was attired in a white crepe de chine trimmed with tulle, ruffles and fur. She wore a black picture hat.

Mrs. Josephus Daniels, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, wore a charming afternoon dress of amethyst velvet fringed with fox fur, hat of the same shade velvet trimmed in fur, and a cluster of violets.

Mrs. Franklin K. Lane, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, wore an exceedingly handsome black velvet suit, with cream lace blouse, combined with broad chignon, hat of black velvet trimmed in a band of fitch fur and a tall aligrette.

Mrs. William C. Redfield, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, wore a becoming demitulle of heavy blue-colored velvet and chignon, the latter run in silver threads and embroidered in the same tones. This was made in draped model, worn with a velvet hat to match, trimmed with sable fur and roses.

Myriad Lights from Glass Chandeliers in East Room Are Reflected Back from Priceless Jewels.

bodice of gold threaded lace made over soft yellow chiffon, with little velvet of a deeper tone, forming small revers. A small black velvet hat, with an aligrette in yellow shades, finished the costume.

The gowns worn by the wives of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and the Associate Justices were exceedingly suggestive of the quiet dignity of their husbands' official rank.

Mrs. Edward Douglas White, who, with the Chief Justice, was one of the first to greet the bride after the ceremony, wore a graceful gown of black chiffon, with a bodice made almost entirely of lace, and a black velvet hat, with white ostrich plumes.

Mrs. Joseph McKenna wore a handsome black velvet suit, lightened by trimmings of blue velvet, with blue waistcoat, and a hat of black velvet, trimmed in plumes.

Mrs. Holmes in Black.
Mrs. Oliver Wendell Holmes had on a handsome all-black gown and small black bonnet.

Mrs. Horace Lurion wore a demitulle of cornflower blue charmeuse, with bodice of point lace, veiled in jetted tulle, and a black velvet hat.

Mrs. Charles E. Hughes wore an exceedingly modish black velvet costume, with bodice of fluted lace and blue chiffon, and a black hat.
